

Profile for Felicity Bradshaw

Felicity has many years' experience in studying native animals in their habitat with her husband, Emeritus Professor Don Bradshaw. As a committed conservationist and wanting to draw attention to the plight of the tiny and secretive Honey possum, Felicity's first book A Tale of Two Honey Possums appeared in 2008. Now, as a STEM Professional-in-Schools, Felicity produced a science resource for Primary Schools, Be a Bush Scientist, that teaches children, how to study natural bushland. This venture has now expanded into the desert environment, where Felicity is contracted by CSIRO in their Two-Way Science Education programme to produce Western science modules for Aboriginal Community Schools. In the process, Felicity has written a second book, The Great Lizard Trek, in which Rocky, an Ornate dragon lizard shares the experiences his relatives have in coping with global warming. It is beautifully illustrated by a Yamatji artist, Norma Macdonald.
